INNOVATION VENTURES INVESTS IN WEATHER TRENDS INTERNATIONAL

Wilmington, DE, April 2011 - Innovation Ventures, LP, with offices in Wilmington, DE and Lancaster, PA, is pleased to announce an investment in Weather Trends International, Inc. Innovation Ventures participated in the Series A-1 round, and the Company intends to use the proceeds for working capital, acquisition of equipment, and sales and marketing activities.

Weather Trends International (WTI), located in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, provides larger retailers, seasonal category suppliers and commodity/equity traders the ability to be proactive and manage their business risk when it comes to weather's influence on their global operations up to a year ahead. The alternative is to attempt to react to extremely volatile weather patterns that are statistically never the same in any given location year-after-year.

“WTI’s proprietary technology is innovative and we believe it will give the company a strong competitive advantage in the long-term weather forecasting market,” said David Freschman, Managing Principal at Innovation Ventures, LP. “Experience is one of the key factors we look for in a management team and they have that along with impressive algorithms and an established clientele of world renowned brands.”

“The investment and creative thinking from the team at Innovation Ventures, L.P. will allow us to quickly scale our year-ahead global weather forecasting technology in the B2B sectors across new emerging markets in South America and Asia. In addition we’ll be able to complete our vision of making year-ahead forecasting a trusted consumer brand with www.wt360.com”, said Bill Kirk, CEO & Co-founder Weather Trends International.
